INTRODUCTORY.

THE LOCKHART LIBRARY was generously presented to the London Missionary Society by the late William Lockhart, Esq., F.R.C.S., F.R.G.S., etc., some four years before his death. Dr. Lockhart, who was born at Liverpool on the 3rd of October, 1811, and died at Blackheath on the 29th of April, 1896, was the first Medical Missionary sent by the Society to China, where he laboured at various stations, but chiefly in Shanghai and Peking, from 1838 to 1864. After his return to England he served the Society most devotedly and efficiently for many years as one of its Directors, in the year 1869–70 filling the office of Chairman to the Board. For upwards of fifty years he utilised a portion of his leisure time—at first in China, and afterwards in London and other European Capitals—in bringing together the volumes of which this Library consists. The results of his wide experience and of his indefatigable labours are seen in the costly, valuable, and unique Collection of Works, comprising some 3,800 Books and Pamphlets, relating chiefly to China and the Far East, together with many Books of Travels and curious Maps and Prints, the contents of which have been catalogued in the first two parts of this volume.

Part I includes some 1,800 ordinary volumes, together with 81 volumes containing more than 1,000 bound Pamphlets. The works are printed in ten European and fourteen Oriental tongues; and they include among them many old and very rare books, in Latin and other languages, some of them not to be met with elsewhere.

Part II consists of Chinese Printed Books, with a few Japanese Works and Reprints, numbering about 900 Volumes. Along with them it has been found convenient to catalogue more than 100 Volumes of Chinese Scriptures, which originally belonged to the General Library. The entries referring to the latter, together with those relating to a few other books of similar origin occurring in Part I, are preceded by an asterisk (*).

Part III comprehends all the works in the GENERAL LIBRARY of the Society—other than the Chinese Scriptures referred to above — to the number of about 3,300 Books and Pamphlets, the inclusion of which in the Catalogue was resolved upon after it had already made some progress. The Ordinary Volumes are about 2,600, with some 50 Volumes containing nearly 600 bound Pamphlets. The works represent one hundred different languages, distributed as follows, viz.:—European 21, African 23, Asian (mostly Indian) 28, American 6, Polynesian and Australian 22. Among other subjects they include valuable works dealing with Oriental Religions, Philosophy, and Literature.

The works in these two Libraries having been brought together mainly with the object of throwing light upon Foreign Missionary Spheres, Subjects, and Operations, their titles have been arranged in the way which seemed best adapted to facilitate their selection for that purpose. Hence, besides cataloguing the various works (a) under the names of their authors, they will be found either entered or referred to by cross entries (b) under the name of the Country, Place, or Station with which they deal, and (c) under the heading of the (foreign) Language in which they have been printed, or to which they chiefly refer. It will thus be found easy to ascertain what there is in the Libraries relating to any given Country, Locality, or Sphere of Work.

Further than this, in so far as classification is practicable in a Dictionary Catalogue by transposing words in the titles and by the use of cross references, certain works of a related character will be found placed together under such headings as the following, viz., "Bible," "Medical Mission," "Mission," "Missionary," "Sacred Books of the East," the names of leading Missionary Societies, etc.; or under the words "Dictionary," "Grammar," "History," "Maps," "Plates," "Travels," "Voyages," and others. Where the letters "P.P." occur following any title they may be taken to denote either a "Parliamentary Paper," or a Blue Book, or any purely Official Government Document.

Although, for the most part, the Catalogue has been prepared single-handed, the Compiler desires gratefully to acknowledge the help given by various friends in identifying books, or in translating their titles. Especially are such acknowledgments due to the memory of the late Rev. John Chalmers, A.M., LL.D., of Hongkong, without whose able assistance Part II could not have been printed in its present complete form, and who, besides affording other very valuable help, revised the whole of the Chinese proofs.

In a catalogue of this description, containing about 14,000 entries, dealing with upwards of 7,200 works, which are printed in more than one hundred different languages, and much of the work for which was necessarily done apart from the companionship of the books themselves, it could scarcely be supposed that some errors have not crept in unawares, notwithstanding every precaution taken to guard against their admission. In the case of a few books printed at Mission Stations, or elsewhere abroad, upon inadequate presses, by instalments of sheets, an element of uncertainty is introduced into the calculation of the size, which should be borne in mind in order to reconcile apparent discrepancies in description with the actual facts.

GOODEVE MABBS.
